

What makes an action right or wrong?
What makes a trait of character virtuous or vicious?
What do we actually mean when we speak of “right” and “wrong,” “virtue” and “vice”?

In this introductory text on ethics, Reginald Oduor presents a critical assessment of various answers given by philosophers to these and other related questions.

The author’s presentation is informed by more than a decade of experience in teaching moral philosophy at the University of Nairobi.

Apart from lecturing philosophy since 1989, beginning at Kenyatta University before moving to the University of Nairobi, Reginald Oduor is the founding Secretary of the Society of Professionals with Visual Disabilities.
