Biographical Statement

Gidraph G. Wairire PhD is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Sociology and Social Work, University of Nairobi, Kenya. He is the immediate past Vice President, Association for Schools of Social Work in Africa (ASSWA) from April 2005 to October 2012. He also served as the Regional Representative for Africa in the International Association of Schools of Social Work (IASSW) Board of directors from March 2007 to October 2012 and as the coordinator, Social Work studies Programme at the University of Nairobi. He regularly consults for different development agencies in Kenya on matters related to Social Work, Comparative Sociology and Community Development. He serves as a reviewer for different social work journals and has over twenty years teaching experience at University level during which he has taught different social work courses as a full time lecturer and on part time basis in different universities in Kenya. Some of his scholarly work has been published as book chapters and journal articles while other papers have been presented in different international conferences and symposia. His main interests include social work theory and practice, counseling, community organization, international social work, developmental social work, social work with minorities, comparative sociology and social action for social change.